

Shot Composition

Good shot composition is an important part of successful video taping. The more you can use the close up shot the better. It brings the viewer into the action and emphasizes the theme of the video. Over the shoulder is an excellent choice for an interview or a discussion between two people. Use lead or look-room if you want a close up of someone while they are talking to or interviewing another person. Long or medium shot is not recommended unless you are trying to get a group shot.
